

Cross Government Programmes

The HSCIC is delivering Cross Government Programmes that facilitate the provision of care and information sharing across government, and support the delivery of Ministerial priorities. The HSCIC has led and delivered a number of high visibility and innovative projects with our partners across government.

250,000

Ministry of Defence patient records have been integrated into NHS IT systems through the Defence Medical Services Project – the equivalent of three times the capacity of the London Olympic stadium.

In 2013, the HSCIC Adapter project won a leading industry efficiency award for "Efficiency in Administration and Clerical Services". The Adapter seamlessly shares patient admission and discharge information across health and social care.

Our partners across government:

- Ministry of Defence
 - Ministry of Justice
 - Home Office
 - Department for Education
 - Department for International Development
 - Department for Work and Pensions

Work is underway to enable 80,000

patients within the residential Health and Justice system to move their patient record between NHS and prisons.

This better supports the often complex health needs of offenders.

The Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) Prevention project is delivering information systems to support the eradication of FGM within a lifetime.

FGM potentially impacts

girls a year – this equates to one girl from every sixth primary school in England.
